The Hongkong Telegraph

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1882.

In its issue of the 7th inst. our morning contemporary, referring to some delay in publishing Reuter's telegrams of the 4th inst. observes that by an oversight these messages were not forwarded to the Daily Press office on the preceding day. We might also make the same complaint. The telegrams in question were not forwarded to this office; in fact, Reuter's telegrams are never by any chance sent to the Hongkong Telegraph, and under all circumstances, we consider we have a perfect right to grumble at what is apparently unjustifiable neglect. We have always had to search for our telegraphic news; either from some friendly disposed and obliging member of the Chamber of Commerce, or in one of the public departments of the Government.

Recently the telegrams have been unusually late in arriving here, or there has been, what appears to us, an unnecessary delay in having them circulated throughout the colony. In consequence of this we have been at times prevented from publishing them in that day's issue, which is very unsatisfactory to ourselves and the public generally. We do not know who must be held responsible for this, but in any case it is a matter of such great public interest that we feel justified in calling the attention of Reuter's Agent to what is certainly a grievance which ought to be at once remedied. As the news telegraphed is invariably at least one day old when it reaches Hongkong, with ordinary care all messages should arrive before noon, and be circulated within one hour after receipt, the first copies being sent to the public newspapers.

There appears to exist in certain circles some kind of an idea that the Daily Press and China Mail have a greater right or claim to publish Reuter's telegrams than the Telegraph. We believe that our contemporaries once paid the magnificent sum of 90 pence per month for the right of publishing the messages wired by the enterprising Baron. Perhaps they still subscribe the above amount for the very doubtful privilege we have just named! We are not on the list of subscribers, nor under present existing circumstances have we any intention of privately subscribing to an institution which is the common property of the Hongkong public. As representatives of the public, and as members of the community and taxpayers, we claim the right to be supplied with what is admittedly public property, and unless the same privilages that appear to have been in the past extended to our contemporaries are accorded to us in the future, we shall respectfully request His Excellency the Administrator to take action in the matter.

In a despatch to the Earl of Kimberley, dated January 24th, 1882, Governor HENNESSY in reply to an enquiry from the Secretary of State observes: "The small sum voted as subscription to Reuter's telegrams has been regularly sanctioned by my predecessor and myself after the approval of the vote by the Finance Committee of the Legislative Council, and on condition that the Chamber of Commerce contribute a subscription to an equal amount. This very moderate subsidy enables the public to obtain some telegraphic information of general interest that we would not otherwise get in Hongkong."

The sum of one thousand dollars per annum of public money is paid by the Government for Reuter's telegrams, or as Governor HENNESSY very plainly puts it, to enable the public to obtain some telegraphic information of general interest, that without this subscription would not be obtainable. With the question as to whether we get value for our money, we need not deal at present; but we claim in the public interest, a right to have all telegrams forwarded to us for publication immediately they are received, otherwise we maintain that $1,000 of public money is being subscribed under pretences which the Secretary of State has not clearly explained to him, and which cannot justify the expenditure of the revenue of this colony. As the Government, on behalf of the public, subscribes a similar amount to that which gives the members of the Chamber of Commerce the privilege of receiving a copy of all telegrams, we claim as a public representative to have the same privilege—such as it is—extended to all the newspapers in this colony whether English or Chinese, so that the news may be published without the slightest delay.

The once brilliant fame of the Dowager Countess of Essex—better known to the world as Miss STEPHENS—says the Daily News, belongs to a period now so remote that probably most persons who read the announcement of the death of this celebrated vocalist and actress had been under the impression that she had long since passed away. She was born, if early memoirs may be trusted, on the 18th of September, 1794, and was therefore in her 88th year; but even this date does not seem to carry us back into the past as does the fact that seventy years ago rival professors were contending in the public papers for the honour of having shared in her training for the stage. Her father, who was somewhat vaguely described as "a carver and gilder in this busy metropolis," but whom the more courtly compilers of Peerages describe as "Edward STEPHENS, Esq., of Leadwell, Oxon," had two daughters remarkable for their musical talents. The elder Miss STEPHENS—afterwards Mrs. J. SMITH—had already attained some distinction as an actress and singer, and was engaged at Drury Lane about the time when her sister CATHERINE, who was destined to become far more famous, was placed as an artful pupil with GUSTAVO LANZA, who appears to have kept a sort of academy for operatic students in Foley-street, Portland-place. Here, as Lanza proudly boasted, "she studied from my theory, the elements of singing for five years, and I prepared her for the stage, affording her the instructions of Mr. WIGNOT in elocution out of my own pocket." It may be inferred that LANZA's system was to give instruction to promising pupils—children of parents of humble means—in the hope of finding his reward in the early development of their talents as concert and operatic singers. If so, he could hardly have found a more satisfactory apprentice than little CATHERINE STEPHENS, who, though the misfortune of her being near-sighted caused some delay, could after two years' instruction, as he tells us, "sing at sight with perfect correctness whenever she could obtain a close view of the score." It was about that time—she being then in her fourteenth year—that she appeared in concerts at Bath, Bristol, Margate, Tunbridge Wells, and numerous other towns—generally under the name of Miss YOUNG—and finally at the Pantheon and the Italian Opera, where she played and sang in small parts. It is even affirmed by LANZA that in the absence of Madame CATALANI, Signor GUZZALLO, the composer, was desirous of engaging her as the prima donna at that house, but, he adds, "her timidity and insufficiency in the Italian language were the cause of my declining the engagement." A substitute for CATALANI who had not yet attained her sixteenth year is not easily to be conceived; but these statements were published at the time, and remained uncontradicted. Nevertheless, Miss STEPHENS's friends seem to have thought it advisable that she should continue her studies under another instructor—Mr. THOMAS WELCH—who appears to have been also an organizer of concerts, and is said to have been fortunate enough to secure for himself one-half the high salary which he was finally enabled to obtain for her under an engagement at Covent Garden. It was, in fact, her debut at the latter house on the 23rd of September, 1813, which first brought her fame in the strict sense of the word. The part chosen for her was Mandane in Dr. ARNE's Artaxerxes, which was quickly followed by Polly in The Beggar's Opera, Clara in The Duenna, and other parts. Only a fortnight after her first appearance Hazlitt wrote in the Examiner: "Miss STEPHENS becomes more and more a favourite of the public. Her singing is delicious; but, admired as it is, it is not admired as it ought to be. Oh, if she had been waited to us from Italy! A voice more sweet, varied, and flexible was perhaps never heard upon the English stage." He adds: "We doubt whether Catalan could give the ballad style of the songs in Artaxerxes—simple but elegant, chaste but full of expression—with equal purity, taste, and tenderness." As regards her acting, Leigh Hunt, one of the best of critics of her time, describing her Polly, speaks of its "beautiful repose; the irresistible way in which she condescends to beseech support when she might extort reluctant wonder, and the graceful awkwardness and naivete of her manner, more captivating than the most finished elegance, completing the charm of her singing." The writers, indeed, who have borne testimony to the singular charm both of her singing and acting are neither few nor undistinguished. MACREADY, who often performed with her in those days, when serious and romantic dramas were sometimes made to include "singing parts," has frequent allusions to her, all of which are marked with affectionate admiration. "Her voice," he tells us, "was of the most exquisite sweetness and extraordinary compass; there was occasional archness and humour in her comic scenes—always intelligence; and, combined with an almost rustic or child-like simplicity, a correctness of judgment that never deserted her." In the same passage he speaks of "the joyous eagerness" with which "frequenters of the theatre used to welcome her, as she nightly appeared before them." Miss STEPHENS has been described as "about the medium height of her sex, with dark hair and eyes, and a countenance which though fascinating was not, strictly speaking, handsome." MACREADY speaks of "ce petit nez trousse." She was much respected, and was a welcome guest in fashionable circles for many years before her marriage with GEORGE, fifth Earl of Essex, which took place on the 10th of April, 1838, and, as contemporary records add, "by special licence at his lordship's house in Belgrave-square." This was, we believe, the house—No. 9—in which her ladyship had long lived in comparative retirement, and where she expired. Lord Essex, who at the time of his marriage had been a widower only two months, was nearly forty years older than his second wife; and he died in April of the following year.

JOSEPH MAXWELL, of Australia, printer, who may justly be termed the "incurable," figured again before the Magistrate this morning on the old charge, Police Constable Grieve having found him lying drunk in Queen's Road at 11 a.m. yesterday. It is only a few days since the Magistrate gave him his last chance, Captain Thomsett then telling him "that if he came up again he would send him to prison whatever promises he might make." The same Magistrate sent him this morning to three months' hard labour.

THE boatswain and seven seamen, all Chinese, of the British barque Three Brothers, were charged this morning before Captain Thomsett, sitting as Marine Magistrate, with refusal of duty on board the 14th March in Quin Hon harbour. The master said the defendants disobeyed his orders and compelled him to advance them a month's wages. The boatswain was the leader in the affair. He shipped them at Swatow. Defendants said they had no money and wanted some, and having expressed their willingness to return to duty, and the master not wishing to press hardly on them, Captain Thomsett discharged them on condition of their behaving themselves.

CHUN FUK, a boatman unemployed, was charged this morning before Captain Thomsett with being in unlawful possession of a blanket, a pair of trousers, and a jacket on the 7th inst. Constable Butline saw the prisoner going Police along Hollywood Road with a bundle under his arm. He asked him what he had in it, and he said it contained his own clothing. Doubting the correctness of this, the constable asked to be allowed to look at the contents, when the defendant threw the bundle at him and took to his heels. Determined not to let his quarry thus escape him, the constable gave chase and overtook the defendant; who, on his way to the station, threw something into a house under repair, where the constable found this morning on searching, a bad half dollar lying in the rubbish. The constable enquired at the Barracks as to whether any clothing had been missed, and discovered that the blanket, trousers and jacket belonged to a corporal and a gunner in the Royal Artillery, who came forward to-day and identified them. Prisoner admitted the charge. There being six previous convictions against him the Magistrate committed the case for trial at the Supreme Court.

The Spanish steamer Julietta went over to Kowloon Docks this morning.

A REUTER's telegram received this morning announces that the Porte, having some doubts about the French policy in the North of Africa, is sending reinforcements to Tripoli.

By kind permission of the Colonel and Officers of the Buffs, the Band of the Regiment will play at the Hongkong Schools Athletic Sports on Tuesday next from 3 o'clock until 5.

The regular monthly meeting of the United Service Lodge, No. 1341, E.C., will be held this evening at the Freemason's Hall, Zealand Street at 7.30 for 8 o'clock; visiting brethren are, as usual, cordially invited to attend.

We hear that Lieutenant-General and Mrs. Donovan take their departure from this by the French Mail on Monday. The General, we understand, books only as far as Singapore, where he purposes remaining for a short time prior to proceeding to England.

We learn by the courtesy of the Superintendent of the Great Northern Telegraph Company that the Chinese Government Overland Telegraph between Chinkiang and Nankin is now open for traffic. The charges are, from Chinkiang to Nankin 6 cents per word; and from Shanghai to Nankin 22 cents per word.

We understand that arrangements are being made for a Military Athletic Meeting to be held on the Cricket Ground on Thursday next. Details of the programme have not reached us; but we are informed that in all probability there will be an Open Quarter Mile Race, for which members of the various Athletic Clubs in the Colony will be eligible to compete.

THE remanded case of attempting to smuggle 47 men on board the P. & O. steamer Dacca on the 4th inst., came on again this morning before Mr. Wedehouse. Mr. Stokes, of the firm of Sharp, Toller and Johnson, appeared on behalf of the prosecution, and applied for a further remand. The Magistrate remanded the case till Wednesday next at eleven o'clock. The defendants were allowed out on bail of one surety of fifty dollars each, or one fourth of the amount of previous bail.

WE, Shanghai Courier, hear that a collision, which at one time appeared to be of a very serious nature this morning occurred through the leaving of the Kiang Kwan from the Kin-le-yuen Wharf, and her drifting on to the Patroclus. The only damage done was to one of the paddle-boxes of the Kiang Kwan, which caught the stern of the "Blue Funnel" boat, that was at her moorings. The strong current and wind which obtained at the time was the cause of the mishap.

We have good reasons for believing that the project now on foot to establish telegraphic communication between Hongkong and Macao will shortly assume a definite form. It is reported that both our local companies are willing to undertake to lay the cable under certain conditions. As the cost of the entire undertaking will amount to comparatively little, and as it is very lucratively supported amongst the Portuguese, we cannot doubt that the proposed line will soon become un fait accompli.

THE imprudence of placing confidence in Chinese servants, however long they may have been in one's service, and however apparently honest, received further illustration at the Police Court this morning. Mr. Liddell's, the superintendent of the Kowloon Docks, boy, who had been ten years in his service, and was implicitly trusted by him, has been proved to have been in the habit of robbing his master for a considerable time. The details of the case, which was remanded, will be found elsewhere.

YESTERDAY afternoon the lighthouse keeper on Green Island discovered a small sampan high and dry on the beach, near the landing place, a dead man's feet protruding from the boat. The body, which was that of an old Chinaman who lived apparently by picking up garbage, &c. in the harbour, was taken to the Civil Hospital. It bore no marks of injury, and death would appear to have resulted from natural causes. The body presented a very dried-up, shrivelled appearance and seemed to be that of an opium smoker. The dead body of a child wrapped up in a cloth, was also found on the beach there, further on, and was also sent to the hospital.

WE earnestly recommend, says the Japan Weekly Mail, to the perusal of the Hochi Shimbun and of all the so-called "Progressionists" whose chief organ that journal professes to be, a letter from "Foreign Capitalist," which will be found in our correspondence columns. There are times when Japan's best friends—friends who refuse to take serious umbrage at any of the wild utterances vented by the Hochi Shimbun and its fellow thinkers—throw up their hands in despair over her prospects and ask themselves whether it can really be true that on the very threshold of political liberty, party spirit and party intrigue are powerful enough to make men utterly blind to the best interests of their country. We are no longer in any doubt as to the Radical programme. It is a programme that appeals to all the selfish sympathies of all classes—to the Shitoku, who are to be restored to a portion at least of their sometime affluence; to the military, whose numbers are to be largely increased and who are to be regarded as the chief factor of their country's greatness; to the people, who are promised an immediate share in the management of their own affairs; to the priests, who are told that Christianity shall be interdicted and Buddhism restored to its old supremacy, and to the whole nation, which is assured that speedy measures will be taken to restrain the imperious aliens' aggression and to recover for Japan a multitude of shadowy rights which she is supposed to have forfeited. It will be an evil day for Japan when the framers of this programme find themselves in a position to carry it out; when the only route along which the country can advance to affluence and consideration—the route of foreign commerce—is effectually closed by an insane policy such as that justly denounced by "Foreign Capitalist."

IN the House of Commons on April 4th the Premier made a statement concerning the situation in Ireland describing it as unparalleled in the last fifty years; he stated that the Government appreciated the danger but would choose its own time for making fresh proposals to the House.

THE Japan Gazette hears from good authority that the terminus of the Mitsu Bishi Mail Steamship Company's steamers on the Hongkong line will in future be at Kobe. The route will now be Hongkong, Nagasaki and Kobe. This was spoken of at the close of last year but was vetoed by the government.

A CLASS is about to be formed on board her Majesty's ship Excellent for the purpose of enabling subaltern officers of Royal Marine Light Infantry to qualify for the appointment of Assistant Gunney Instructors at the Marine divisions. The class is expected to assemble on the 6th proximo.

THE Agent of the Messageries Maritimes Co. informed us on Thursday afternoon that the steamer Saghalien arrived in Shanghai on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at 2 o'clock p.m. It would therefore appear that the delay off Hieshan, alluded to in our last issue, could only have been of a temporary character.

THE Pope has addressed a letter to the Archbishops and Bishops of Italy, painting in the darkest colours the spiritual depravity of the country, and urging them as an antidote to promote the formation of Catholic associations, the establishment and diffusion of Catholic journals, and to devote special care to the training of the young priests.

RUSSIA has at last, says the Standard, shown her hand in her negotiations with the Vatican, she requires, as the price of peace and liberty for the Church in Poland, that the Church shall no more pretend to the called national, and that the Pontiff shall use religious sentiment to foster and promote slavism. It is not likely that such pretensions will be admitted.

WE note, says the Amoy Gazette of the 1st inst., the departure to-day by the steamship Thales for Hongkong of señor Don Thomas Lozano, Spanish Consul General at this port, en route to Europe on furlough. We hear that señor Don Antolin Pita y Cazamias, Vice-Consul, remains in charge of the Consulate General.

AT the instance of Major-General Burnaby, the War Office is just now considering the advisability of ordering out the Army Reserve for the drill period allowed by law, and arranging that the veteran soldiers who have quitted the colours shall be mingled with the troops now serving in the line. This idea of proving the reality of the Reserve is received with high favour in military circles.

A GREAT many people have imbibed the strange idea that a person who has anything to do, or is in any way connected with horses, must be set down as a professor of roguery. Even men who ought to know better are not free from this absurd prejudice. We read in a home paper that the well known Mr. Commissioner Kerr in referring to a horse-coping case said:—"This is the old, old story. Whenever a man has anything to do with a horse he gets thoroughly demoralised, and has no regard for truth or honesty." Our contemporary commenting on these remarks of the learned Commissioner observes:—"We beg to take exception to this wholesale condemnation. We could point to a hundred gentlemen who occupy a position as high as that held by the worthy Commissioner, and yet these men have not become thoroughly demoralised, though they have 'to do with horses.'"

WE observe in a London contemporary that a country newspaper has been suggesting that it would be a happy thing to re-erect the old Eddystone Lighthouse on the Victoria Embankment as a companion to Cleopatra's Needle. It may reasonably be presumed that the said provincial journal knows nothing whatever of the Thames Embankment. Any one who has seen Cleopatra's Needle would not wish to look upon another, let alone the Eddystone Lighthouse. The needle, as it at present stands, with a couple of fabulous heads turning their tails towards it, is a sorrowful sight. What the embankment would look like if the Eddystone Lighthouse were added we dare not conjecture. It is evident, however, that if certain persons had their way we should soon have the embankment turned into a hideous museum. Might we suggest in retaliation, adds our contemporary, that the "griffin" should be taken down, and transferred to the top of the Cheviot Hills.

WE hear that, in addition to the Regimental sports of the Buffs to be held on Thursday next the Royal Artillery have it in contemplation to have independent sports of their own later on.

WE regret to hear of the death, last night, in the Naval Hospital, of Chief Petty Officer Keating, brother to Mr. James Keating of this city, who has been on this station for a considerable period. The deceased was a member of the "Craft" and was much respected amongst his messmates for his upright and manly character. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

WE would again direct attention to the Bazaar to be given by the Italian Sisters at the Convent, Caine Road, on Monday next the 10th inst. The Bazaar will be opened at two o'clock, and as it is being held for a worthy object we trust it will receive the patronage of the whole community. The various articles contributed are unusually pretty, and should command an extensive sale. The Band of the Buffs, by kind permission of Colonel Parnell and the Officers of the Regiment, will attend and play a selection of music during the afternoon. The Italian sisters earnestly solicit the support of the public, which for such a charitable object, we have no doubt will be forthcoming.

THE ways of the "Heathen Chinese" are indeed curious. A new style of paying respect to the "dear departed" came under our observation yesterday. A Chinese gentleman created quite a sensation by purchasing the whole of the live fish in the Central Market and afterwards setting them adrift in their native element for the benefit of the souls of some of his ancestors, and to appease the water gods. It was a rather expensive game, as the fishmongers charged unusually high prices, owing to there being a big demand on account of Good Friday. However a very large quantity of fish and lobsters, and one turtle were liberated, the latter being marked with appropriate characters.

THE remanded case in which Ng Aip, a servant on board the Iron Duke, is charged with stealing a diamond ring valued at $40, the property of Tam Asing, a washerman, on the 1st inst., came on again this morning before Mr. Wedehouse. George Humphrey, Acting Inspector of Police, said he had made enquiries regarding the defendant. He had been on board the Iron Duke two months and had a good character from Commander Atkinson. He was discharged from the Albatross in December last for constantly going on shore without leave. He had borne a good character on other ships. The pawnbroker, on being recalled, said the defendant represented the ring to be his own, that he would redeem it on the 1st of the month, and that he got very good pay. The Magistrate sentenced the defendant to four months imprisonment with hard labour, and ordered the ring to be given up to the owner.

A WATCHMAN, enjoying the euphonious cognomen of Koda Bux, the same individual whose namesake was recently sent to gaol on the day's hard labour for taking liberties with his (the present defendant's) cabbage, was brought up this morning before Mr. Wedehouse charged with being asleep on duty at 2.30 a.m. yesterday. Defendant, who is employed by Mr. Dorabjee of the Hongkong Hotel, was found lying cosily asleep in his watch box by Police Constable Lyons, and, before the Magistrate this morning, proved himself to be possessed of a legal turn of mind, by demanding to know how it was, if he was asleep, the constable did not take his umbrella and stick in proof of the fact, and declared that he was sitting not sleeping. The Magistrate, who failed to perceive the pertinency of Koda's interrogatory, fined him fifty cents or three days' imprisonment.

LI APAR, a hawker, was brought up this morning, before Mr. Wedehouse, charged with being a rogue and vagabond and acting as a watchman to gamblers. Six Police Constables surdool Singh observed eight or ten people gambling at the back of the Po Lok Theatre on the 6th. The defendant, who was standing near the Kun Yun Temple, immediately he saw the Constable, called out: "A green clothes devil is coming!" whereupon all the gamblers made tracks and escaped. Not so, however, the individual who had described the turbaned Punjaabee in such uncomplimentary terms. Him the sikh pursued with the fleetness characteristic of his race, bringing him up sharp, and lodging him in the station. The interesting fact having come to light that the defendant had previously served a term of six months' for entering a dwelling house by night, the Magistrate sentenced him to three months' imprisonment with hard labour.

THE remanded case in which five boatmen are charged with being concerned in the attack on a sampan in the harbour on the 28th March, came on again before Mr. Wedehouse to-day. The sampan-man, who has been discharged from Hospital, appeared and gave evidence as to the attack. He said one of the men seized him by the neck and pressed his head down, face foremost, holding him in that position the whole time, so that he was unable to identify any of the attacking party. He also deposed to receiving wounds on the head and right forearm from some sharp instrument. His wife rowed the boat back after the robbers left at Tsim Tsa Tsui, he being unable to lend any assistance in consequence of his wounds and the beating he had received. Mr. Wedehouse enquired if no police boats were cruising about near the place on the night of the attack. Inspector Craddock said the Chinese police boat had left its beat that night, and that the men had been all severely punished. Mr. Wedehouse also made enquiries as to the information upon which the prisoners had been arrested, and asked about the informer. Inspector Perry said the informer's life would be worth much if he came forward publicly, that he would be murdered; and in reply to Mr. Wedehouse, said he could not say whether the informer was himself one of the attacking party. Mr. Wedehouse not being satisfied with the evidence adduced, said he would further remand the case until this evening.
